SIT Cameroon: Social Pluralism and Development
Yaoundé, Cameroon

PREREQUISITES
Three recent semesters of college-level French or the equivalent and the ability to follow coursework in French, as assessed by SIT

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: late January to mid-May

OVERVIEW
The Social Pluralism and Development program is based in Yaoundé, Cameroon’s political capital and second-largest city. Home to more than 200 ethnic groups and even more local languages and dialects, Cameroon faces the challenge of finding common ground for its national agenda.

The semester program consists of four courses, including an Independent Study Project. The thematic seminar is taught in French and English, and intensive language study allows students to engage more fully with the community in Cameroon. The Field Study Seminar addresses ethical and culturally appropriate research methodology in preparation for the Independent Study Project.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You will spend five weeks with a homestay in Yaoundé, two weeks with a homestay in the western region of Cameroon (Dschang), and two weeks with a homestay in Ngaoundéré. During the Independent Study Project period, you will also stay with local families. Various homestay experiences will give you insight into how social change is manifested in different regions. Other accommodations during the program could include hostels, private homes, and small hotels.

SIT Ghana: Social Transformation and Cultural Expression
Accra, Ghana

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: late August to early December
Spring: early February to mid-May

OVERVIEW
The Social Transformation and Cultural Expression program is based in Accra, a cosmopolitan city of nearly 3 million people, and the political and economic heart of Ghana. The program provides the opportunity for meaningful engagement with Ghanaian scholars, artists, dancers, musicians, painters, sculptors, weavers, writers, and other in-country experts.

Interdisciplinary coursework, held in the classroom and in the field, explores the historical and contemporary circumstances that have shaped Ghanaian society and the artistic outputs of this complex and highly diverse West African country. Topics considered in southern Ghana range from education and religious traditions unique to Africa, to the impact of the trans-Atlantic slave trade to the role of Queen Mothers in Krobo. Thematic seminars in northern Ghana examine topics such as the contrast between Western and traditionally trained midwives to the role of local markets in the global economy.

Required coursework includes Social Transformation and Cultural Expression, Visual and Performing Arts in Ghana, Research Methods and Ethics, Intensive Beginning Twi language, and an Independent Study Project. All courses are taught in English.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
All housing is arranged by SIT, including three distinct homestay experiences—in Accra, Kumasi, and Asante. Other accommodations could include hostels, private homes, and small hotels.

www.sit.edu/studyabroad

In Yaoundé, you will have access to cultural activities, academic resources, and many of the international development organizations headquartered in the city.

Five very distinct ecosystems, each containing a wide variety of flora and fauna, exist within a 50-mile radius of Fort Dauphin. The city is a great base from which to take a variety of educational excursions.
SIT Madagascar: Biodiversity and Natural Resources Management

Fort Dauphin, Madagascar

PREREQUISITES
Previous college-level coursework in environmental studies, ecology, biology, or related fields; three recent semesters of college-level French or the equivalent; and the ability to follow coursework in French, as assessed by SIT.

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: late January to mid-May

OVERVIEW
Madagascar's unique evolutionary path has produced an immeasurable contribution to the world's biodiversity—more than 80 percent of the flora and fauna are endemic. In the Biodiversity and Natural Resources Management program, classroom and field-based instruction in natural and social scientific methods encourage you to analyze environmental issues in an array of ecosystems, including rainforests, dry spiny forests, alpine and transitional forests, savannas, gallery and littoral forests, mangroves, and coral reefs.

The semester program consists of four courses, including an Independent Study Project. Coursework is conducted mainly in academic French.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
During the course of the program, you live in two homestays. You will spend a month living with a host family in Fort Dauphin, time that is broken up by trips to various ecosystems, national parks, and historic sites. Some students also choose to spend time with their Fort Dauphin host family during the Independent Study Project period. To learn about Malagasy rural issues, you will also live for one week in a rural village, typically in the area of Faux Cap on the southern tip of Madagascar. Students are placed in different villages surrounding the town. Other accommodations during the program could include hostels, private homes, and small hotels.

SIT Madagascar: Urbanization and Rural Development

Antananarivo, Madagascar

PREREQUISITES
Two recent semesters of college-level French or the equivalent and the ability to follow coursework in French, as assessed by SIT.

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: late January to mid-May

OVERVIEW
Through immersion in the country’s dynamic capital city, Antananarivo, and the west coast town of Mahajanga as well as on excursions in the country’s eastern and northwestern regions, you will develop an in-depth understanding of the domestic and external influences that will continue to shape this island nation. Topics for exploration include cultural and sociological perspectives, history, government and political processes, economic and social development, population, geography, and the environment.

The semester program consists of four courses, including an Independent Study Project. The Urbanization and Rural Development Seminar is conducted entirely in academic French. The Field Study Seminar is conducted in English.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
The program incorporates three different homestays to offer you a rich variety of perspectives. The first and longest homestay is in Antananarivo, the capital city and the program’s base. You then live for two weeks with families in the port town of Mahajanga, located on the country’s northwestern coast. Your final homestay experience is five nights in a rural village in the Bongolava region. Other accommodations could include hostels, private homes, and small hotels.

Augsburg College Southern Africa Studies

Windhoek, Namibia

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: mid-August to early December
Spring: mid-January to early May

OVERVIEW
Namibia won its independence from South Africa in 1990 after decades of apartheid. Through coursework, homestays, and traveling, the program examines crucial issues from the perspectives of the new democracies of southern Africa. The program begins and ends with a traveling seminar to South Africa. You will visit Johannesburg for the first week and Cape Town in the last.

The semester program consists of four 4-credit courses or three 4-credit courses and either an internship or an independent study. All courses are taught in English.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You live in dormitory-style housing in Windhoek West for most of the semester. For the South Africa travel portion, modest hotels and guesthouses will serve as your accommodations. The program also includes an eight-day urban homestay in Katatura, Windhoek; a 10-day homestay with a rural family in northern Namibia; and a short homestay with an urban family in Soweto, Johannesburg.

SIT Senegal: National Identity and the Arts

Dakar, Senegal

PREREQUISITES
Three recent semesters of college-level French or the equivalent and the ability to follow coursework in French, as assessed by SIT

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: early February to mid-May

OVERVIEW
The National Identity and the Arts program will examine the complex social, economic, and political issues facing Senegal. Topics of study include the role of Islam in Senegalese life; contemporary development; challenges posed to women’s rights; education; and traditional West African music, rhythms, and storytelling. You will not only learn West African art forms and what they represent, but you will also learn to create and perform them. Located on the Atlantic coast, Dakar abounds with lively cultural activities and is home to well-known Senegalese musicians such as Baba Maal, Ismael Lo, Coumba Gawlo, Youssou N’Dour, and Thione Seck.

The semester program consists of five courses, including an Independent Study Project. The National Identity and the Arts seminar is taught mainly in French and the remaining courses primarily in English.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
The program features three homestays. You will live for six weeks in Dakar and also have two shorter homestays (approximately three to four days each) in rural areas of the country. Recently, the village stay included living in the Wolof ecovillage of Mouit on the Senegalese coast. During the second rural homestay you will typically live in different villages outside the town of Kedougou. Other accommodations during the program include hostels, private homes, or small hotels.

Duke OTS South Africa

Kruger National Park, South Africa

PREREQUISITES
Two semesters of college-level biology, ecology, or other related sciences

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: late August to early December
Spring: late January to early May

OVERVIEW
The Organization for Tropical Studies (OTS) South Africa program is designed for biology majors but open to students from all disciplines. Distinguished visiting scientists will help you develop an understanding of issues related to ecology and conservation. You will also look at the history and culture of South Africa with prominent historians, artists, and cultural theorists.

Based in Kruger National Park in eastern South Africa, field study and research exercises at several camps within the park expose you to the different types of savanna that are home to the park’s abundant wildlife. You will also participate in a short river-rafting trip and a longer excursion to Cape Town, which gives you the opportunity to experience the Drakensberg Mountains, the Highveld, and the biodiversity of the fynbos and karoo.

The semester program consists of four 4-credit courses. Courses are taught in English.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
Accommodations at the research stations will range from dormitories to small chalets. In Cape Town, you will stay at a backpackers’ lodge.

SPECIAL APPLICATION NOTE

Fordham in Pretoria

Pretoria, South Africa

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Spring: January to May

OVERVIEW
For the past three decades, South Africa’s transformation has captured the attention of people around the world, and in recent years students have sought educational opportunities abroad in this emerging democratic nation. The Fordham in Pretoria program offers you a structured and supportive environment for study and engagement with the South African people and their history. You will tackle ethical questions about justice, faith, personal beliefs, poverty, and social change. The program is based at the University of Pretoria, the leading research university in South Africa.

There are two required courses that integrate a service-learning component, and you select two or three additional courses from the University of Pretoria’s offerings. There are a number of field trips and excursions, including trips to Soweto, Nelson Mandela’s house in Johannesburg, and a weeklong visit to Cape Town.

Located in the northern part of South Africa, Pretoria is the executive capital of the country and is home to many senior diplomats and politicians. A city full of diverse cultural influences, architecture in Pretoria ranges from British Colonial to Art Deco, with a variety of uniquely South African forms.

SIT South Africa: Community Health and Social Policy

Durban, South Africa

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to early December
Spring: late January to early May

OVERVIEW
The Community Health and Social Policy program focuses on topics such as the relationship between traditional healing and state-of-the-art medicine, prenatal care, access to health care, and health education. You will explore the way that health issues are researched, communicated, and addressed. The program emphasizes the role of research, the influence of the media, the roles of the state and private enterprise, and the agency of community members. In this context, you are challenged to articulate Durban and South Africa’s health complexities in a balanced way. You learn how to be critical consumers of medical research papers and media reports on health. You are also encouraged to think more broadly about the perceived dichotomy between Western and traditional medical practice and to appreciate the importance of acceptability and accessibility.

The semester program consists of four courses, including an Independent Study Project. Courses are taught in English.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
The main homestay is a four-week stay with Zulu-speaking families in or close to the township of Cato Manor, near Durban. You will also experience shorter (three-night) homestays in rural areas in Impendle, Amatikulu, and Umthwalume. Other accommodations during the program include hostels, private homes, or small hotels.

SIT South Africa: Multiculturalism and Human Rights

Cape Town, South Africa

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: early February to mid-May

OVERVIEW
South Africa is truly a multicultural society, with 11 national languages and numerous ethnic groups. While South Africans have seen tremendous change since the first multiracial elections in 1994, they anticipate a long road before achieving equality. South Africa is striving to implement a very progressive national constitution, restructure local governments, deliver basic services to all communities, and come to terms with a high rate of societal violence and a still-uneasy racial divide. As a student in the Multiculturalism and Human Rights program, you will explore these issues, meet inspiring individuals and organizations making a difference across South Africa, and contemplate the country’s future path.

The semester program consists of four courses, including an Independent Study Project. Courses are taught in English.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
The program features several homestays designed to introduce students firsthand to South Africa’s cultural diversity. Students spend four weeks in Xhosa-speaking communities in Langa Township in Cape Town, one week in the rural Eastern Cape (Tsabo), one week with bilingual Afrikaans- and English-speaking homestays in Stellenbosch, and one week with another bilingual hosts in Bo Kaap.

SIT South Africa: Social and Political Transformation

Durban, South Africa

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: late August to mid-December
Spring: early February to mid-May

OVERVIEW
The Social and Political Transformation program illuminates South Africa’s complexity and diversity and its poverty and richness in both historical and contemporary contexts. Similar to other countries around the world, South Africa is striving to free itself of a legacy of racial discrimination, economic exploitation, and political authoritarianism to build a new democratic and equitable regime. Through coursework and community engagement, you will discover the significant role that Durban, the program’s base, has played in South African history, particularly its role in apartheid.

The semester program consists of four courses, including an Independent Study Project. Courses are taught in English.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
The program features three homestays. The first is with Zulu-speakers in Cato Manor, an urban township about five kilometers from the SIT facility in Durban. You will also experience shorter homestays in rural Amacambini and in Newlands. Other accommodations include hostels, private homes, or small hotels.

www.sit.edu/studyabroad

In the Multiculturalism and Human Rights program in Cape Town, you will spend time living in Langa township. With primarily Xhosa-speaking residents, Langa was one of many areas designated for black South Africans and is one of the oldest townships in the country.

Located just off the coast of the African continent in the Indian Ocean, Zanzibar is host to incredible geographic and ecological resources.

“The support was great throughout, and I think a lot of that had to do with the size of the program. There were only 25 of us, all from different universities. It was the perfect mix of having my own independence and also knowing that there were these people that I could ask silly questions, like, ‘How do I get to school?’”

SIT Uganda: Development Studies alumna
SIT Tanzania: Wildlife Ecology and Conservation
Arusha, Tanzania

PREREQUISITES
Previous college-level coursework and/or other significant preparation in environmental studies, ecology, biology, sociology, anthropology, international relations, or related fields, as assessed by SIT

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: late January to early May

OVERVIEW
Tanzania is a beautiful and diverse country that includes the Serengeti Plains, the snows of Kilimanjaro, and the islands of Zanzibar. Within the Serengeti ecosystem is Olduvai Gorge, the site of the famous discoveries of pre-Homo sapiens fossils. The Serengeti also contains the immense Ngorongoro Crater, a 20-mile-wide volcanic crater, home to a large and diverse population of wildlife. Within these disparate ecosystems, the Wildlife Ecology and Conservation program looks at how issues of population growth, land use, and tourism development are in tense juxtaposition with wildlife conservation efforts.

The semester program consists of four courses, including an Independent Study Project.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
In Arusha, students spend about three weeks living in Bangata. Another homestay takes place in the Masai Village of Ngare Sero for one week. Other accommodations include hostels, private homes, small hotels, and camping.

Kampala, Uganda

PREREQUISITES
Background in development studies or a related field is strongly recommended

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: early February to mid-May

OVERVIEW
Emerging from a turbulent political past, Uganda is now on a firm path of economic and social recovery. The country has made significant strides in human rights, HIV/AIDS prevention, grassroots development, microfinance, and community conservation.

You will explore social issues that come with these transformations, along with topics related to development theory, foreign aid, and the sustainability of Uganda’s recent advances. Based in Kampala, Uganda’s thriving capital, the program also offers an in-depth, hands-on practicum with one of the country’s many international or grassroots development organizations.

The semester program consists of four courses, including an Independent Study Project.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
Students experience one six-week homestay in Kampala and one week in a rural area of eastern Uganda. Other accommodations include hostels, guesthouses, or small hotels.

Pitt in the Himalayas

Mussoorie, India

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: late August to mid-December

OVERVIEW
The University of Pittsburgh program in Mussoorie is located in the foothills of the Himalayas. The location provides easy access to forests, rivers, village communities, and views of the Himalayan peaks. With a population of 26,000, Mussoorie offers the conveniences and resources of contemporary urban living yet remains small enough to offer students daily opportunities for true engagement with the local culture and community.

Courses are held at the Hanifl Centre at the Woodstock School in Mussoorie. You will choose from courses with an emphasis on anthropology and geography, which include extensive academic excursions to contextualize course content and make the most of the program’s setting. You will take either a Hindi or Urdu language course to round out your schedule.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
There is dormitory-style housing at a modern residential facility on the campus of the Woodstock School. Three meals are provided daily.

South India Term Abroad

Madurai, India

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: mid-August to early December
Spring: January to mid-April

OVERVIEW
South India Term Abroad (SITA) offers an opportunity to experience the fascinating cultural environment of the city of Madurai in the southern state of Tamil Nadu. Once the capital of an ancient kingdom, the city of Madurai was built around Meenakshi Amman Temple, which today plays an integral part in Madurai life and attracts Hindu pilgrims from all over India. Literary works produced by a Tamil poets’ academy are among the oldest existing manuscripts in the world and remain vibrant objects of research and debate. Tamil people continue to teach and practice traditional music, dance, sport, and art forms.

Courses and extracurricular activities provide the background necessary to understand the history and belief systems that underlie everyday life in South India. Field trips within South India supplement the overall experience by providing broad exposure to the cultural complexity of the region. For the semester, you will take two required courses and choose two electives.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
Homestay arrangements are provided by SITA.

University of New South Wales

Sydney, Australia

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall (Session 2): July to November
Spring (Session 1): February to June

OVERVIEW
Located in Kensington, a southeastern suburb of Sydney, the University of New South Wales (UNSW) is Australia’s leading international university, with a comprehensive range of liberal arts, management, and commerce (business) programs as well as extensive science, technology, and engineering-based courses. New South Wales, Australia’s most populous state, is known for the picturesque harbor of its capital, Sydney. It is also home to a diverse landscape of beaches, mountains, quirky towns, and cosmopolitan centers as well as the Australian outback.

Students take a full semester of courses, alongside other international and Australian students. A typical course load is four courses though it is possible to take five. Most courses carry 6 UNSW units, which typically will be registered as 3 Syracuse credits. With a wide range of courses available to you, plan ahead and consult your academic advisor before applying.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You have the choice to live on or off campus. Each college or residence hall has its own evaluation and application.

“You have to be willing to go out of your comfort zone and try something that you would never be able to do at home. I tried brand-new things like surfing, faced my fears climbing the Harbour Bridge and bungee jumping, and jumped off cliffs into waterfalls. It’s about remembering and valuing your boundaries yet pushing them.”

CET FAMU Art Photography

Program, Czech Republic

Program Calendar
- Fall: late August to mid-December
- Spring: late January to mid-May

Overview
Spend a semester at FAMU, the Film and Television School of the Academy of Performing Arts. Among the oldest and finest film academies in the world, FAMU has played an integral role in Czech cultural history, fostering the New Wave of the 1960s and serving as a headquarters for the student-led Velvet Revolution that brought an end to communist rule in Czechoslovakia.

You will enroll in two core courses—Fine Art Photography and Imagery and Ambiguity and Culture—a Czech language course, and two to three elective courses from FAMU’s international program. The core courses focus on analog techniques and darkroom developing. The electives specialize in areas such as digital photography, still life, and restoration. All courses (except for Czech language) are taught in English. Several noncredit workshops are also offered each semester. Besides your coursework, several trips and activities are planned while you are in Prague. Past activities have included guided visits to Prague Castle, the Jewish Quarter, the Czech Parliament, and Radio Free Europe.

Living Arrangements
You are housed with fellow CET students and local students in an apartment in a Czech residential building. Housing cost is included in the program fee; meals are not.

Czech Republic

CET Jewish Studies in Prague

Prague, Czech Republic

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: late August to mid-December
Spring: late January to mid-May

OVERVIEW
Prague’s thousand years of Jewish history, its Jewish Quarter with six surviving synagogues, and a growing Jewish community make it an excellent setting in which to explore Central and Eastern European Jewry. You will participate in the Jewish community through activities with the Czech Union of Jewish Youth as well as through community service projects.

Courses are offered in association with the Charles University Faculty of Humanities but are held at CET’s center in Prague. There are two required courses: a Czech language course and Modern History of the Jews in East Central Europe. You choose three elective courses, including the option of participating in a service-learning course.

Besides your coursework, several trips and activities are planned while you are in Prague. Past activities have included guided visits to Prague Castle, the Jewish Quarter, the Czech Parliament, and Radio Free Europe. You will also participate in a weeklong seminar in Poland, a weekend in Budapest, and an overnight excursion to Cesky Krumlov, a medieval/Renaissance castle town on the Austrian border.

UPCES at Charles University

Prague, Czech Republic

PREREQUISITES
Open only to junior and senior undergraduate students in the social sciences

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: early February to late May

OVERVIEW
The Undergraduate Program in Central European Studies (UPCES) evolved as a joint effort of CERGE-EI and Charles University, which were striving for a common goal: a top-quality undergraduate educational experience focused on integral issues of Central Europe. Located in Prague, the UPCES program is close to historic buildings, theaters, concert and exhibition halls, museums, and galleries with easy train access to many European metropolises.

Study abroad students take part in courses divided into one-half American and one-half European students. The European segment comes from students of Charles University and other European Erasmus students studying abroad in Prague. This integration guarantees that students take their courses in an international, multicultural environment. The semester program consists of four courses taught in English, plus beginning Czech language. A typical course load is 16 credits.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You will spend your first week in a hotel arranged by UPCES but paid for by you. During that time, you will be provided with a list of realtors that past students have used to find available flats. It is up to you, with the help of the staff, to secure housing for the rest of the semester.

Danish Institute for Study Abroad
Copenhagen, Denmark

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: August to December
Spring: January to May

OVERVIEW
Copenhagen is a friendly, open city with 1.9 million residents and a small-town atmosphere. A world leader in sustainable urban planning, Copenhagen has an excellent public transportation system, and 36 percent of Copenhagen residents commute daily by bicycle. The Danish Institute for Study Abroad (DIS) is located in the heart of Old Copenhagen, within walking distance of research libraries, government buildings, European Union agencies, the Royal Ballet and Opera, and superb art collections. DIS field studies and practicums will ensure that you interact with the city and its people and benefit professionally and socially.

At DIS, you will choose from a range of programming options, including international business, justice and human rights, sustainability in Europe, urban design, and global economics, among many others. All courses are taught in English. You will choose one core course (which includes a weeklong study tour) in your designated program and then fill your schedule with electives from any discipline. Danish language is offered but not required, and internship and independent study options are available. With a wide range of courses available to you, plan ahead and consult your academic advisor before applying.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You may choose from six options: a Danish homestay; the living and learning apartment community with fellow DIS students (includes meals); the DIS residential community (no meals); Kollegium, a residence hall with other Danish or international students; Folkehojskole, a living community with other Danes; or an apartment with a Danish roommate.

Bard Smolny Institute
St. Petersburg, Russia

Prerequisites
Four semesters of college-level Russian language

Program Calendar
Fall: mid-August to late December
Spring: late January to early June

Overview
Smolny College—Russia’s first liberal arts college—is a joint enterprise of Bard College and St. Petersburg State University. Smolny College seeks to contribute to the democratization of Russian higher education and, in doing so, to serve as a model for a new kind of international education.

Students usually take between 12 and 18 credits per semester, 9 of which are typically in a Second Language program. High-proficiency speakers may have this requirement reduced or waived. You are able to choose from a variety of liberal arts courses taught at Smolny College; these classes are taught in Russian, and American students are expected to read 100 to 200 pages per week in Russian, participate in class discussion, and write college-level academic papers.

Living Arrangements
You will have the option to have a homestay or to live in student dormitories. The dormitories are home to a number of four-year Smolny students and are divided into suites. The campus and city center are easily accessible via public transportation.

It is recommended that you take advantage of a homestay. This will provide opportunities for immersion in a Russian cultural and linguistic environment, and homestays foster language acquisition and provide a support network outside of Smolny.

Special Application Note
Applications for the spring semester are due to SU Abroad by September 20 (earlier than the typical October 1 deadline).

School of Russian and Asian Studies
Various locations across Russia, the Ukraine, and Kyrgyzstan

Prerequisites
Some programs require previous Russian language study

Program Calendar:
Fall: early September to mid-December
Spring: early February to late May

Overview
Founded in 1996, the School of Russian and Asian Studies (SRAS) offers programs in Moscow, St. Petersburg, Irkutsk, Vladivostok, Kiev, and Bishkek. From sprawling St. Petersburg to Siberian Irkutsk to post-Soviet Kiev and Bishkek, SRAS fosters immersive experiences at local universities and in-depth support to engage you in contemporary issues across Russia and Asia. Program options include intensive language study as well as thematic programming on policy and conflict, Siberian environmental and cultural studies, and cultural psychology. Many programs offer courses taught in English and require no previous Russian language study.

The Russian as a Second Language program is an intensive language program available at all locations to students of all proficiency levels. The Russian Studies Abroad program in Moscow provides intensive language courses as well as courses taught in English on political economy, history, literature, and Russian studies. Other programs include Central Asian Studies in Kyrgyzstan, The Russian Far East in Vladivostok, and The Russian Folklore Expedition in rural villages.

With a wide variety of program options, schedule a sit-down consultation with your academic advisor and SU faculty to review the best fit for your academic needs and professional goals.

Living Arrangements
Most locations offer the choice of on-campus dormitories or homestay accommodations.

Augsburg in Cuba

Havana, Cuba

PROGRAM CALENDAR

Spring: January to May

OVERVIEW

U.S. students will encounter a reality in Cuba unlike anything they have experienced. The total absence of commercial advertisements, the existence of state-structured organizations, lack of ready access to many consumer goods—all these things and more will serve as an introduction to Cuba and its capital city, Havana.

A social justice framework will challenge preconceived notions about the social, political, and historical realities of Cuba. Students will take four or five courses in English, with a Spanish language course required. The program will combine site visits and guest lectures with theoretical learning. Academic excursions include a week in Central Cuba and a weekend in Varadero Beach.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS

You will live in a homestay in a historically black working-class neighborhood on the southwest side of Havana, 20 minutes from the city center.

SEA Semester: Colonization to Conservation in the Caribbean

Ocean Exploration

Sustainability in Polynesian Island Cultures and Ecosystems Program

Woods Hole, Massachusetts, and various locations

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Varies per cruise track

OVERVIEW
SEA Semester (SEA) is an educational adventure open to students in all majors. The semesterlong program is for 12 weeks, with half taking place on shore and the other half at sea. The interdisciplinary program begins in Woods Hole, Massachusetts. There you will study the chemistry, biology, physics, and geology of the oceans and you will design your own research project that you will carry out at sea. You will learn what it requires to take a vessel under sail safely to the deep ocean and to international ports.

After six weeks on shore, you and your classmates will join the crew on a 135-foot vessel, either in the Atlantic/Caribbean or in the Pacific. Every day, you will be given more responsibility as your skills increase until you are running the ship. SEA voyages follow various cruise tracks depending on the research focus and weather conditions. There are typically two port stops, with one outside the United States.

You will earn up to 17 credits for your semester. The semester program consists of three 3-credit courses on shore and two 3- or 4-credit courses at sea. All courses are taught in English. Honors students: this program will count for many of your honors requirements.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
At Woods Hole, you will live in one of five fully furnished cottages. In preparation for going to sea, you will function as a team with your roommates and be responsible for the housekeeping, shopping, and cooking. While you are at sea, you will live onboard the ship.

OVERVIEW
Now home to more than 300,000 people, modern Cuenca was founded in 1557 upon the site of the Inca city of Tomebamba and works to preserve both its pre-Columbian and colonial Spanish heritages. The main CEDEI center is situated in the beautiful colonial heart of the city.

The semester is divided into two terms of three courses each, for a maximum of 18 credits for the semester. The first term will focus mainly on language and environmental issues. The second provides the option of doing an internship or service-learning project. Classes are taught in English, but you should have at least basic-level proficiency in Spanish, especially for the internship option. CEDEI offers Spanish at all levels as well as content courses in Spanish. You are required to take a 1-credit core course: Latin American Issues.

Courses are available in business, environmental studies, health education, political science, Quechua, Spanish, and sociology. The program also includes study tours to the Galapagos Islands and Peru.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You will live with an Ecuadorian host family during your stay. You will have your own room, laundry service, and three meals a day.

University of Haifa

Haifa, Israel

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: early October to early January
Spring: mid-February to late May

OVERVIEW
The campus of the University of Haifa spreads along a Carmel Mountain ridge southeast of the city of Haifa and is surrounded by Carmel National Park. The university was established in 1963 and is the most pluralistic institution of higher education in Israel. Haifa is known to openly welcome residents from veteran cities and development towns, kibbutzim and moshavim, new immigrants, Jews, Arabs, and Druzes in an atmosphere of coexistence, tolerance, and mutual respect.

A wide range of course options are offered through the International School. These include Hebrew and Arabic language and culture, contemporary Israel and Middle East studies, religious and Jewish studies, business and economics, sociology, psychology, political science, peace and conflict studies, English language and literature, and history.

One of the flagship programs of the International School is the immersive experience of the Arabic Language, Culture, and Civilization semester program. You can choose to study Arabic alongside your regular coursework or opt for a dedicated program of Modern Standard Arabic language plus a cluster of courses on Arab culture. For students with more advanced language proficiency, U Haifa arranges community-based internships in one of the Druze villages close to campus. Intensive summer-start programs in Hebrew and Arabic are also available independent of the semester program facilitated by SU Abroad.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You can choose between two on-campus options with either double or single rooms arranged through the International School. You will live alongside other international students studying at U Haifa. Students in the Arabic Language, Culture, and Civilization program can request to live with Arab students.

AMIDEAST Arabic Studies
Amman, Jordan

PREREQUISITES
Three semesters of Arabic language

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: late August to mid-December
Spring: mid-January to early May

OVERVIEW
Amman, capital of the Kingdom of Jordan, is an ancient city facing distinctly modern challenges. Over its history, Amman has expanded from a sleepy town to a bustling, modern metropolis and is now home to a government that acts as a key Middle Eastern ally of the United States. Students may find no better place to study pressing Middle Eastern issues and Arabic than in this modern and culturally diverse city.

Students enroll in 14 to 17 credits in this language-intensive program. There are two required Arabic courses, one in Modern Standard Arabic and one in Jordanian Dialect. You will then choose two to three elective courses in Middle Eastern studies, religion, gender studies, or political science, among other disciplines. The program includes excursions to urban and rural settings. The small, intimate nature of the program allows for an individualized structure and customization.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You can choose a homestay or live in an apartments with other program participants.

CET Arabic Studies
Irbid, Jordan

PREREQUISITES
Two semesters of Arabic language

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: late August to mid-December
Spring: late January to May

OVERVIEW
An intensive Arabic language program, CET Jordan is based at Yarmouk University in Irbid, Jordan. In a location ideal for immersion, the program attracts a select group of serious students who want to concentrate on their Arabic language training. You will have access to modern campus facilities, complete with an advanced research library, sports facilities, and wireless Internet access.

You will take Modern Standard Arabic as well as Jordanian Dialect. Each student is assigned a local language partner to help practice the dialect. In addition, you will choose two Middle Eastern Studies electives.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
Apartments are within walking distance of campus. You will share your apartment with a local roommate.

American University of Beirut
Beirut, Lebanon

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: mid-September to February
Spring: February to mid-June

OVERVIEW
A teaching-centered research university, the American University of Beirut (AUB) has about 700 instructional faculties and a student body of around 8,000. It is well known for its international student body, which attracts undergraduates and postgraduates from across the region as well as from the U.S. and other Western countries. The language of instruction is English (except for courses in the Arabic department and other language courses).

Most Syracuse University students, graduate and undergraduate, enroll in courses offered through AUB’s Center for Arab and Middle East Studies (CAMES) program while they also study Arabic at all levels.

While you can choose courses from this program (or from other course offerings at AUB), please note that enrollment is subject to space availability and that some classes may have prerequisites. Therefore, it’s wise to choose substitute courses along with your preferred selections. A normal course load is 12 to 15 credits, and most courses are 3 credits each. With a wide range of courses available to you, plan ahead and consult your academic advisor before applying.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
The American University in Beirut has sufficient on-campus housing for about one-fifth of its student body. Study abroad undergraduate students who do not have family in Beirut are given preference in on-campus housing, but on-campus housing cannot be guaranteed. Off-campus housing is plentiful in the neighborhood surrounding the university (Hamra).

AMIDEAST Arabic Studies
Rabat, Morocco

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Fall: late August to late December
Spring: mid-January to mid-May

OVERVIEW
The AMIDEAST Education Abroad Program in Rabat offers a diverse set of courses and semi-intensive instruction in Modern Standard Arabic and Moroccan Arabic. Your classes will be at both AMIDEAST’s facilities in the bustling Agdal area of the city and in the buildings of AMIDEAST’s partner, the College of Letters and Humanities of Mohammed V University–Agdal, near the Royal Palace. Courses are taught by English-speaking Moroccan faculty members from universities in Rabat and neighboring cities.

All students enroll in Modern Standard and Moroccan Colloquial Arabic. For your remaining courses, you will choose two or three electives from offerings in Middle Eastern and North African studies in a variety of disciplines.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You have the option of either a homestay or a residence hall. Students usually are placed with a roommate from the AMIDEAST program into families who have previous experience hosting American students through AMIDEAST. You will be provided with all of your meals in your homestay but may find that some days it is not possible to return to the family home for lunch because of class schedules, so you should budget accordingly.

In the residence hall of Mohammed V University, you will live with a Moroccan roommate. The residence hall is located in the university quarter of the city, and students living there should expect to take public transportation to and from classes.

CET Arabic Studies
Tunis, Tunisia

PROGRAM CALENDAR
Spring: late January to mid-May
Fall: late August to mid-December

OVERVIEW
Tunis, Tunisia’s capital city, has a long history of Arab, African, and European influences, making it a true meeting ground of East and West. The medina, Tunis’s old Arab quarter, dates from the seventh century and is ripe for exploration: mazes of covered alleys, ancient palaces, and colorful markets are alive with trade. The cosmopolitan downtown offers European-style cafés, theaters, and art galleries.

You are based at the University of Carthage, a large university with excellent resources, particularly for language learners. The CET Tunisia program is hosted by the school’s Higher Institute of Languages, which offers courses in Arabic and foreign languages and literatures.

All students take the Arabic language course Modern Standard Arabic and a Tunisian Dialect course. You will also take two electives in Middle Eastern studies. Academic disciplines include literature, history, and politics. Electives are taught in English. Tunisian students typically enroll in these electives, adding a cross-cultural perspective to the classroom.

LIVING ARRANGEMENTS
You will share apartments with Tunisian roommates. All apartments are within walking distance of the CET center.

Exploring your neighborhood in Istanbul will allow you to find unique shops and cafés.
choosing your world partner

With the many destinations and academic options available through the World Partner programs, it’s important to think through exactly what kind of program best suits your individual needs and interests. Discuss your preferences with an academic advisor, family, friends, and the SU Abroad staff. Keep in mind that study abroad is an ideal opportunity to stretch beyond your comfort zone to experience and learn new things about the world and yourself. Realizing what you want to accomplish and setting realistic goals in advance will put you on the right track.

Consider:

Academic fit
With double majors and minors, almost every student has to be strategic about completing some degree requirements abroad. Identify where abroad you can get courses you MUST take, and build out from there. If you’re in chemistry or engineering and need coursework with labs, look at the large universities—in Dublin or Hong Kong, in London or Sydney or Brisbane. Biology and anthropology students have these same choices, along with many more field study and research options all over the world. The more flexibility you have for electives, the greater your choices. In most university programs, you will finalize your registrations abroad, so flexibility and a list of backup course options is key to making this work.

Program model
In addition to comprehensive foreign university partners, there are many U.S.-sponsored programs of various sizes and types offering specialized topics and themes. If you enroll in an English-speaking university abroad, you become an international student who will take courses alongside other international and local students. If you’re looking for a more experiential, field-based experience, consider one of the many SIT project-based programs in Africa or India, where your student peers will be U.S. students, but you will be immersed in a local community and culture that will become your home. Other World Partner programs (e.g., SRAS in Russia, Siberia, and Eurasia) offer a whole range of models, allowing you to customize every aspect of their program.

Living arrangements
Are you looking for a homestay option to increase your language skills and to experience a more immersive environment? Or would your ideal program offer dormitory options where you would be housed with local or other international students? Many programs utilize the housing arrangement to reinforce their academic offerings, so you may not have a choice of housing. Be sure to research the setup and be comfortable with your options.

Language requirements
World Partner programs offer full language immersion options (e.g., Arabic in Jordan through CET) as well as the opportunity to combine language study at most levels with courses taught in English (in Austria, China, Germany, Japan, India, Israel, Morocco, South Korea, Turkey, and elsewhere). While some intensive language programs have prerequisites, others do not. Faculty in the Languages, Literature, and Linguistics department are well informed about SU World Partners and can advise you in your search.
policies and procedures

Syracuse University is an equal-opportunity, affirmative-action institution. We do not discriminate on the basis of race, creed, color, gender, national origin, religion, marital status, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or status as a disabled veteran or a veteran of the Vietnam era, to any extent discrimination is prohibited by law. This nondiscrimination policy covers admissions; employment; and access to and treatment in University programs, services, and activities.

Syracuse University welcomes people with disabilities and, in compliance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, and the Americans with Disabilities Act, does not discriminate on the basis of disability. Services for students with disabilities are coordinated by the Office of Disability Services, Room 309, 804 University Avenue, 315.443.4490 (voice), 315.443.5019 (TDD). Syracuse University supports equal opportunity regardless of race, color, national origin, or gender, and, in compliance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, or gender.

Questions about any of the University’s equal-opportunity policies, including compliance with Title VI and Title IX, may be directed to Tom Rose, Chief Human Resources Officer and Vice President, Human Capital Development, Office of Human Resources, Skytop Office Building, Syracuse University, Syracuse, NY 13244-5300, 315.443.4224 (voice).

Syracuse University is chartered by the New York State Board of Regents and accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Professional accreditation for each of the colleges and schools accords with the regulations of the appropriate professional association.

While the University reserves the right to change, discontinue, or add academic requirements, courses, and programs of study without notice, every effort will be made to provide timely notice to students. Refunds will be made in accordance with the University’s current refund policies, as described in the Bursar publication “Syracuse University Bulletin: Tuition, Fees, and Related Policies.”

Access
Syracuse University welcomes students with disabilities who are otherwise qualified for admission to the program. However, accessibility laws that govern the U.S. do not apply to public buildings and facilities in Europe, Asia, Latin America, and Africa, and other countries generally do not provide the U.S. standard of accessibility. SU Abroad administrators may be aware of architectural barriers that could cause difficulty for anyone with a mobility impairment and can advise you if the program you have chosen involves extensive walking, strenuous travel, or other obstacles. Students with mobility disabilities may also find they need assistance to access some of our facilities.

Program Cancellation/Changes
Syracuse University reserves the right in its sole discretion to cancel, alter, or relocate programs, before or after a program has started, as it may determine necessary or desirable for the safety or well-being of students, employees, or the program itself. Notwithstanding this reserved right, it is the responsibility of each student participating in a program to determine whether his/her safety and well-being will be jeopardized by participating in a program. Syracuse University shall have no liability for any exercise of, or failure to exercise, this reserved right to cancel, alter, or relocate a program, except in the event of gross negligence. Any refunds relating to any such cancellation, alteration, or relocation will be governed by the University’s current refund policies, as described in the Bursar publication “Syracuse University Bulletin: Tuition, Fees, and Related Policies.”

Student Conduct
SU Abroad is committed to your health and safety while you are studying abroad. You must be in good disciplinary and academic standing with your home university to be eligible to study abroad and must maintain this standing through your term overseas.

SU Abroad participants are held accountable to the Syracuse University Statement of Students Rights and Responsibilities, the Code of Student Conduct, and the SU Abroad Standards of Behavior while overseas. Students are expected to conduct themselves in a manner supportive of the educational mission of the institution. Integrity, respect for the person and property of others, and a commitment to intellectual and personal growth in a diverse population are values deemed fundamental to membership in the Syracuse University community.

All World Partner program participants will be charged Syracuse University tuition for their program abroad. All current financial aid, grants, and scholarship awards besides work-study are applicable. More information is available online at suabroad.syr.edu/finances.

Undergraduate students are expected to maintain full-time status of at least 12 SU credits and will be charged the full-time tuition rate as published. Graduate students will be charged on a per-credit basis where possible but will need to consult with their home department and SU Abroad on the availability of part-time study at their chosen location.

In addition to SU tuition, all students will be charged a program fee, which varies by location. Please meet with a counselor or visit the full program description pages at suabroad.syr.edu/destinations/worldpartners for additional information.

You are encouraged to speak early and often with the Office of Financial Aid and Scholarship Programs for additional assistance with your particular financial aid package.
Admissions Criteria
Minimum GPA requirement: 3.0
World Partner programs are limited to Syracuse University students ONLY. Many programs have prerequisites including previous language study or class standing. Please review individual program pages at suabroad.syr.edu/destinations/worldpartners for more details.

Applicants to language-intensive programs must submit both an academic recommendation from an appropriate language instructor and a recent professor/instructor assessment of academic performance beyond language courses.

In addition, students applying to a country on the U.S. Department of State Travel Warnings list or subject to recent security alerts are required to submit two academic recommendations and present compelling rationale to support their application. Currently, these destinations include Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, and Tunisia.

SU Abroad also reserves the option to solicit additional recommendations from all applicants as necessary to assess the student’s ability to succeed in the chosen program.

Application Deadlines
Most applications are due by March 15 for fall semester or academic year programs and October 1 for spring semester programs. Early deadlines will be clearly listed where applicable. All SU Abroad applications will be reviewed beginning on respective deadlines, and no priority consideration will be given to early submissions. Many partner institutions, however, have rolling admissions, and you are encouraged to apply early.

All programs require applications BOTH to SU Abroad and to the host university/institution. The SU Abroad application is available at suabroad.syr.edu, and most World Partner applications are also available online.

When you apply online, please be prepared to:
• Create a username and password
• Provide home and campus contact information
• Provide academic recommendation information
• Select a tentative list of courses you intend to take
While most course rosters for upcoming semesters are not available at the time of application, it is important to become familiar with what is typically offered in the semester you will be attending and map out multiple courses of interest for review with your academic advisor.
• Write short essays
Clearly outline your academic goals, previous international experience, language proficiency level, and prior academic preparation for the particular program. Most programs are conducted in small cohorts and require a high degree of focus, maturity, and independence. Be clear about your expectations for the program and your potential fit.
• Outline an Independent Study Project (where applicable)
Applicants to SIT and other programs will be required to describe their initial plan for an Independent Study Project, including major themes to be explored, methods of collecting information, and connections to other coursework. This is not a final proposal and will inevitably change throughout your experience abroad, but it should be thoughtful, thorough, and as detailed as possible.
• Pay application fees
• Apply for any available grants/scholarships
You are eligible to apply for the named scholarships administered directly through SU Abroad but should also review any financial aid or scholarships offered directly through the partner institution. It is your responsibility to review eligibility requirements and apply directly for any of these funding opportunities.

For detailed information on application requirements, visit suabroad.syr.edu.
